

5th Year, No. 104, Issue 30

May 3, 2010

www.dhsflipside.com

*Free Everywhere; $2.30 Canada

World Language Teachers' Carts Hold Plenty of Secrets

By Herbie Karjoj

DEERFIELD, IL - Every DHS student has knocked into one of the Spanish teachers at Deerfield High School while they were towing around their ubiquitous beige metal carts. These carts may seem to be simply a way for these educators to move their laptops, teaching materials, and markers from one classroom to the next, but they are so much more.

Spanish III Honors teacher, Señora Velasqez, shared with reporters that her cart, "is a microcosm of her life". "My cart carries cute little pictures of my grand-niece and her puppies, my cell phone, complete with a Ricky Martin ringtone so that my students can be immersed in the Spanish culture when my husband calls me throughout the day, and a few boxes of tissues. The tissue boxes represent my deep emotional attachment to the Spanish language."

On a different, more interesting note, Señor Parkman admitted, "I keep an open container of six month old sour cream on the bottom shelf of my cart so that students move out of my way when I walk through the crowded X-F intersection." He added, "When those kids get a whiff of the 'ParkKart', as I like to call her, they pretty much create a runway to the door of my next class. That gives me plenty of time to get into the room early and sip my Arizona Iced Tea before the headache of class begins."

Some students complain that these carts cause problems in the hallways and create congestion in doorways. DHS Junior Daniel Nguyen recalled, "The Chinese teachers just rolled clear over my foot and into my shin last week with her devilish cart. I call it the steel killer on wheels. I still have a huge gash. The doctor says I'll be on crutches for the next two weeks. None of the teachers even said that they were sorry. These carts have got to go."

The World Language department disagrees. "We devote a large part of the department's budget to refurbishing the carts every year and keeping them in tip-top shape," said department chair and Hebrew teacher, Jeffrey Goldman. They are a key asset to our students' ability to learn a World Language because everybody knows that when students get a paper cut on the side of one of their numerous vocabulary review sheet handouts they will need a few squirts of Purell from their teachers' carts to prevent infection."

A French teacher, Madame Chien,

Facebook Introduces 'Like Like' Button For Awkward Teens

By Laney Kuenzel

Just weeks after announcing its ambitious plan to spread the 'Like' button all over the Internet, Facebook unveiled the 'Like Like' button. The new button, which will appear below a user's profile picture, will provide a convenient way for shy or socially awkward users to share their romantic feelings with one another.

As a Facebook representative explained in a press conference yesterday afternoon, "Based on extensive market research, we realized that when you like like someone, the 'Like' button is simply not enough. With the 'Like Like' button, you can tell that special Facebook friend that you want to be more than just friends.

"Many Facebook users have reacted positively to the announcement. For example, Jason Parsons, a sixth grader from Michigan, expressed excitement about trying out the new button. He explained, "There's this girl that I really like, but I'm too scared to actually talk to her. A few weeks ago, I decided I would show her how I feel by pressing 'Like' on all of her 837 tagged photos on Facebook. The 'Like Like' button just makes it so much easier!"

According to a Facebook insider, the company plans to introduce even more romantic buttons in the near future, including a 'Love' button for people who want to say "I love you" to their significant other but are too scared to do so in person.

Throughout History, People have Begun Essays with Grand Generalizations

By Professor John McSnoot

Throughout history, people have begun essays with grand generalizations. It's one of the most common mistakes I see in student papers. These generalizations are often the same as the title of the essay, which should always be its own thought.

There are three main mistakes I see in my students' writing: Making a laundry list of reasons, sentence construction badness, and repetitive, redundant sentences of redundancy. Then, they do not provide adequate explanations for their reasoning. They just beat around the bush and never get to the point and just repeat the same thing over and over and use way too many long, winding run-on sentences that could have easily been separated surprised reporters with an amazing confession. "My secret it that my cart's a Transformer," Mme Chien coyly admitted. "His name is the Conjuginator and I fly him to school every day. I could never give up my cart. He saves me the trouble of finding a spot in the heavily-crowded staff parking lot." Later she told reporters, "The Conjuginator and I are great friends. We have a "I scratch your back and you scratch mine" relationship. He carries me and all of my assignments, be them listening labs or overhead exercises, to school five days a week, and I decointo several smaller sentences for increased clarity.

Other students do include examples, but they try to force a fit to include a direct quote. It reminds me of the politician Richard Nixon, who once famously stated, "I am not a crook!" Don't do this in your paper, because it isn't correct. (And you also shouldn't use contractions.)

In conclusion, as I stated in my intro, throughout history, people have ended essays with grand generalizations. It's one of the most common mistakes I see in student papers. They also use their conclusion to restate their introduction instead of finishing with a separate thought.

Most young writers end their essays too abruptly.

rate him with pretty Christmas lights so that he can be the prettiest cart in the whole school."

After hearing this news, students' views on the infamous World Language carts may change. "I've always thought Transformers were pretty cool," recalled Sophomore Alana Armstrong, "and I may invest in one of those carts to push around all day too! I hear backpacks are really bad for your back anyway, and rolling backpacks are the new black. I might as well take it one step further and get a cool metal cart."

More Headlines

Flipside Hires New Editor* to Take Blame for Typos

* Yes, the new editor is my dog. You may say he's just working on The Flipside so he can put it on his college application, but he is doing a really good job so far. He's worked his way up from "pROOF reader" to "editor-in-TREATS." Get it?

Youth Hockey League's Playoff Beards Really Sad

That's Right, Tipper Gore is Single

No, Area Mom Will Not "Chill Out"

Flipside Blotter

May 25

An elderly man held up a gumball machine. Police and the man were both confused by the incident.

June 2 (May 33)
An Apple employee crashed his Segway into his exgirlfreind's car. Just when you thought Apple salespeople couldn't get any more awkward...

THE FLIPSIDE CRYPTOGRAM CHALLENGE: solve the Cryptogram, write down your name, and put your copy of The Flipside in locker I192. There will be a drawing to see who win a sweet Flipside t-shirt!!

QUOTE "Hooray! We finally get to use Google Documents!" ~Nobody

REBUS PUZZLES

Last issue's answers: CATERPILLAR, CHEX MIX, HEALTH CENTER, ESOUIRE

ADVERTISEMENT

CRYPTOGRAM CHALLENGE

This is a simple substitution code. Each letter is replaced by a different letter. Try to decode the message or quote below.

Congratulations to last week's winner: Adam Sherman HINT: X = T Runner up from last week and first ever honorable mention: Jari Matos

"XQM XVTGCOM KNXQ ATLLNSL NY XQHX, CF XQM XNDM FTG VMHONPM FTG'VM

STX NS YQHWM ITV NX, NX'Y XTT IHV XT KHOR CHJR." ~ IVHSRONS W. ATSMY

Last issue's answer: "THE FOUR LEVELS OF COMEDY: MAKE YOUR FRIENDS LAUGH, MAKE STRANGERS LAUGH, GET PAID TO MAKE STRANGERS LAUGH, AND MAKE PEOPLE TALK LIKE YOU BECAUSE IT IS SO MUCH FUN." ~ JERRY SEINFELD

SUDOKU

Level: Take-home final

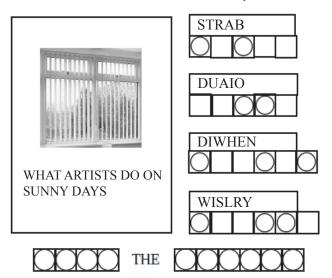

Fill in the grid so each column, row, and 3x3 box has the numbers 1 through 9.

	9							3
		4	8
7		2		4	9			5
					1		6	7
		8		5		3
2	6		9
3			4	9		1		6
					2	4
8							9

Note: All names and stories are fictional, unless public figures are being satirized. Remember, these are all jokes.

JUMBLE

Unscramble these four ordinary jumbles, and use the letters in circles to answer the final question.

Last issue's answers: HELMS, FUSSY, FAMINE, SPOILS. What they said about the sketchy seafood store: SMELLS FISHY

www.dhsflipside.com

11perlsoni@dist113.local.org

The Flipside is always looking for new writers, puzzle makers, and distributors. E-mail us if you're interested.