

New FOX Show “American Immigrant” to Cross Boundaries

By Curry Gagarin

LOS ANGELES—With the success that American Idol has brought to the Fox Network, Fox has recently announced that, in alliance with the GOP, it will be producing “American Immigrant” for the upcoming fall lineup. President of Fox Rupert Murdoch thinks that this is a bold new step for television as a whole and sees this as an exciting new opportunity.

“Fox is looking to bank off not only the recent rise in interest in America that American Idol has brought on, but is also looking to use the recent immigration discussions in Congress to roll in ratings.”

The premise of the show involves taking immigrants and forcing them into a basic skills competition, where one by one they will be eliminated from the competition and deported to their respective countries by the audience watching at home, until the final winning immigrant will be awarded a green card and thirty dollars.

The first few rounds of the show will feature the participants battling each other in obstacle course-like contests that are rumored to consist of such events as shoe kicking, egg on a spoon races, three-legged sack races, and spinning their head on a baseball bat five times before completing a timed 50-yard dash. For most of these competitions, the contestants will be blindfolded.

The logo for the new Fox show. AP PHOTO

“By completing such tasks, it will prove whether these immigrants will be able to deal with the hardships of American life on a much grander scale,” says show producer and “American Idol” creator Simon Fuller.

The winner is awarded a green card and thirty dollars.

The show itself will draw its contestants from the pool of countless illegal immigrants currently in America, and twelve lucky contestants will be forced to participate. During the course of the competition, the contestants will have to live in only one Beverly Hills mansion, to get a taste of the American Dream that will likely be taken away from them.

As with any Fox show, there will be three judges presiding over the competition, telling America how each contestant is doing and ever so slightly reveal who the winner should be. Simon Cowell is said to be really excited about this new project.

“I’m going to treat all contestants fairly,” said Cowell. “If I feel like they haven’t handled that egg on the spoon well, I’m going to say so.”

After the number of contestants dwindles down to four, the final four contestants will have to complete much harder tasks. In the final episode, the remaining two participants will race to see which of the two can complete an elbow licking, then hack into the Pentagon, and finally write the great American novel.

According to Murdoch, “By having the final round consist of these tasks, we can promise the American viewer that the winning contestant and “new American immigrant” will be the most legal and best immigrant to ever step forth on American soil.”

Even if the show is massively successful, Fox representatives have said that they will absolutely NOT be reprising the show for a second season to let yet another illegal immigrant into the country, citing that the cost would be too great.

Man Who Also Has Name Chuck Norris Getting Inflated Ego

RIGHT: The real Chuck Norris. ABOVE: The other Chuck Norris AP PHOTO

By Timpani Timmy

AKRON, OH—A local plumber’s assistant and devout “lifter” who happens to share the name Chuck Norris with the infamous booty-kicker and movie star is taking advantage of the recent trend of “Chuck Norris Jokes.” It has come to the point where he literally thinks he is the second leading cause of death in the United States and believes he has a fist for a chin.

“He has really been taking those jokes to heart,” says Burt Stutts, a longtime friend and crony down at the gym. “On more than one occasion, he has forced someone to tell the jokes as he leans back and closes his eyes in a state of proud bliss.”

Many friends have also noted that this Chuck Norris has been getting offended at the use of the term “joke” to describe what he calls his “obvious virtues.” The man’s family is displaying a sense of worry now as well.

“Whenever we watch Walker, Texas Ranger reruns now he complains about the supposed “lack of realism” and how they are “portraying him as a softie.”

“We’ve tried to bring him to therapy,” continued his brother, “but he refuses to go because he thinks therapy should be called Chuck Norris and it should consist of him showing off his abs to millions of adoring fans.”

As for now, his friends and family are beginning to get used to his extremely misguided arrogance and brand spankin’ new beard, because as he often says while basking in his own cleverness, “This Chucktatorship is going nowhere.”

Bush: “Wouldn’t It Be Irony If We Were All Made of Iron”

By Yancey Buttsavage

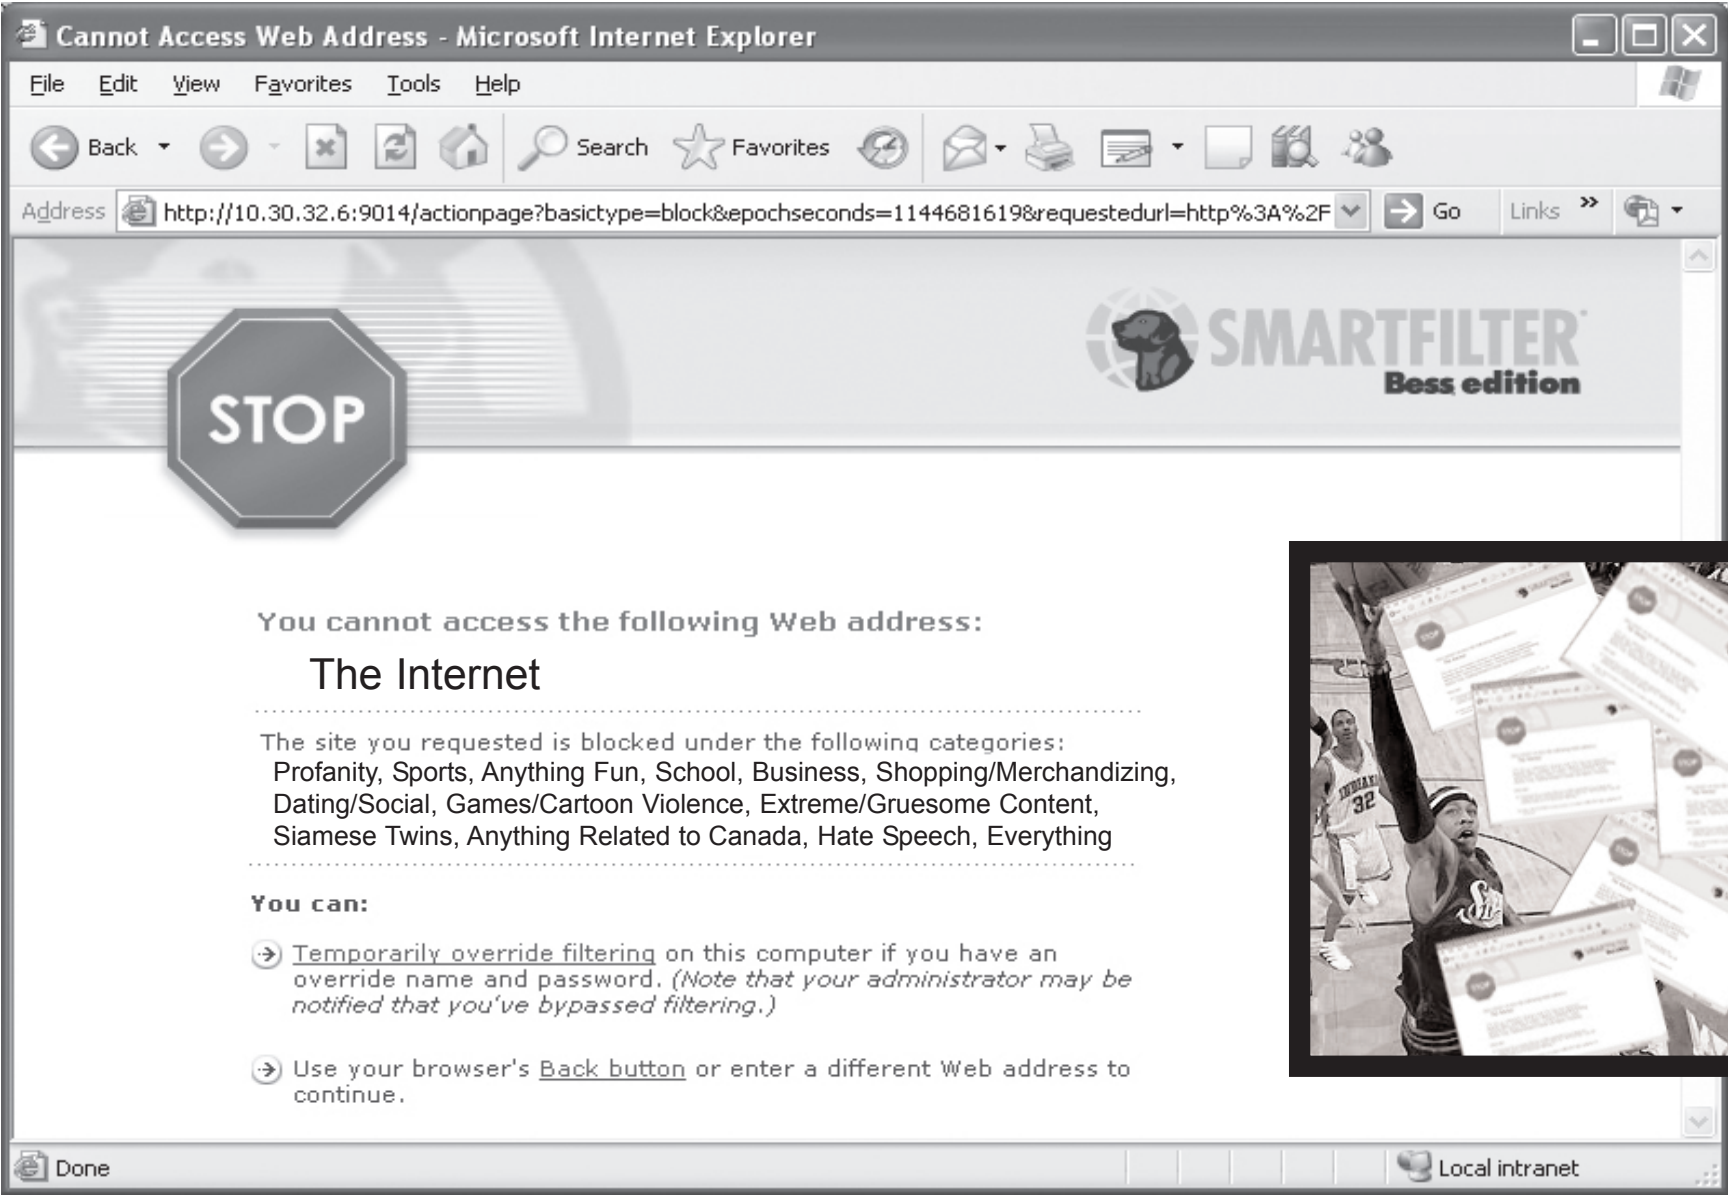

WASHINGTON—This quote comes as no shock to the American general public. The accidental wit and wisdom of our dear president has been taking this nation by storm, but this puts the cherry on the cake, and it takes the cake. Delicious chocolate cake, by the way. With white and blue icing.

However, at a recent press conference, the president was asked a question by reporter Douglas Klotz. Klotz asked, “Mr. President, what do you think of Dubai’s decision to buy many large U.S. ports?” The president responded with, “Well, I believe this could be a potentially good thing for our country. Plus I find it ironic that Dubai did buy. I like irony.” When the Flipside reporters told him that that was not a good example of irony but more of a pun, he broke down into a cold sweat and left the press conference.

*TYPO FREE ISSUE CHALLENGE: Last issue we posed a challenge to see if our readers could find our typos. Not very many of you did, but there were some. This issue has been edited and reread and there is not a single typo. Prove us wrong and email theman@dhsflipside.com.

SmartFilter on Rampage!

Deerfield High School Web Filter Blocks Allen Iverson; Internet

ABOVE: A screenshot of the SmartFilter in action. RIGHT: The SmartFilter blocks Iverson in his game against the Pacers.

AP PHOTO

BY BERNARD TIBBERTS

DEERFIELD, IL—The new SmartFilter that Deerfield High School has employed to safeguard its students from the dangers of the real world was recently found to be blocking the Internet.

Many students were trying to access the Internet for scholastic purposes when they were confronted by the evil SmartFilter along with the password prompt. This was really a setback to the learning process and many students expressed their frustrations.

“I just wanted to see the assignment I had in Honors World History today that my teacher posted, but how am I supposed to get to it now that the whole Internet is blocked?”

The director of the technology department at the school addressed the concerns calmly. “There is no reason to believe that anything is going wrong. The SmartFilter was set, Filbert as we call him affectionately, to block any sort of site deemed probable to harm a student, and basically the whole Internet fell under that category.”

We then asked him whether or not he was aware that he was blocking his own website, the Deerfield High School home page. His unruffled response: “The information on there was just not suitable.”

The information on the Deerfield High School home page as well as the general Internet breached the forty-two main categories of internet censoring including but not limited to everything.

In addition to blocking the entire World Wide Web, the SmartFilter was found to be making appearances at NBA games.

Last week, in the middle of a game between the Philadelphia Seventy-Sixers and Indiana Pacers, the SmartFilter came in in the fourth quarter and made a huge block on Allen Iverson.

“I thought he was just limited to the Internet,” said Iverson in a press conference after the game. “I didn’t know he had those kind of hops. I mean he got up. He rejected that thing all the way back into the tenth row. That’s crazy.”

We asked Iverson if he was embarrassed that he was blocked by the SmartFilter, who is not technically in the NBA. He refused to comment.

Head Coach of the Pacers Rick Carlisle was ecstatic. “The SmartFilter really gave us an energy boost that we needed to win that game and make a run. After that block on Allen Iverson, he went on the score fifteen points and grab eight boards and get seven assists. We don’t get those kind of stats out of anyone. He definitely will be getting a bonus.”

As of now, the SmartFilter is retired back to his home in the Deerfield High School computer network blocking websites pointlessly, and drinking coffee and playing Text Twist (on Netscape).

THE FLIPSIDE

Mercury von Tando
Founder

Barney Schmutz
Publisher

Wilde Sheyboygan
Editor-In-Chief

Traveling Jack Flanders
Publisher Emeritus

INSIDE

Dr. Pepper Gets P.H.D. in Psychology
-----PAGE 4C

Local Man Convinced He Could Yo-Yo for Ten Hours Straight if He Really Wanted To
-----PAGE 4D

Fashion Police Arrest Masters Tournament For Handing Out Green Jackets
-----PAGE 15

CONTENTS

OPINION	4
ASK JEEVES	6
HOROSCOPE	7
QUIZ	7
OBITUARIES	7
CLASSIFIEDS	7
SUDOKU	8
NUMBERS	8
JUMBLE	8
PICTURE THIS	8
CROSSWORD	8

Tennis Superstar Parents Unimpressed by Son's Artistic Talent

By Huey Caquest

Husband and wife Andre Agassi and Steffi Graf are known worldwide for their tennis talent and prowess on the court. But with the four and a half year anniversary of their son Jaden Gil's birthday fast approaching, the two parents worry about their son's future.

"[Jaden] has yet to swing his tennis racket properly," says Agassi, who claims that he tries teaching the basics of tennis to his son day and night to no avail. "All he wants to do is stay at home and finger-paint. [Pete] Sampras is already giving me grief about his son Christian and how talented he is. The world might as well just hand Christian Sampras the Wimbledon title right now."

While Agassi has never had a taste for modern art (he's always considered himself a Renaissance type of guy), art critics are starting to take notice of the talented young Jaden.

"His use of shadow with his temperate colors seems to add a real flair to a lot of his early work," says

French critic Floyd Reauchambeau on his skills as a finger painter, "and I have yet to see his shadings with his blue and green colors be matched by any other preschooler in the western hemisphere."

While the young Jaden Gil Agassi is beginning to receive notice in the art world, he has fallen out of favor with his parents, becoming their second favorite child to his three-year old sister. Graf said it was only a matter of time before this would happen.

"It's rather elementary, the only reason Andre and I got together was to produce the world's greatest tennis player," says Graf. "As soon as Jaden had a falling out with tennis, our efforts turned to our daughter. We hope that within a few years, by the age of eight, she'll be able to beat both of the Williams sisters at once."

Four-year old Jaden currently resides in a smaller, one room garage beside the Agassi mansion, with only a few canvases and only the primary colors in finger-paint form, as provided unwillingly by his parents.

A painting by Jaden Gil Agassi, which is now in the MOMA

AP PHOTO

"Small" Addition to DHS Security

In a press release, the DHS head of internal security said that our hallway security staff would be joined by one more guard, Gary Coleman. The reason for the addition to the force was because Pete's bomb disarming skills are a little rusty, and Coleman specializes in building and disarming bombs.

This reporter wasn't lucky enough to catch Coleman for any sort of interview, but he was lucky enough to form questions and find quotes from past interviews and copy/paste them into a word processor. (*These are real interviews)

Barry Solomon(abbreviated BS for rest of interview): Thanks for finding the time to sit down and chat Mr. Coleman.

Gary Coleman: Oh, well I'm not (Interview, Aug 8, 2003).

BS: Yes, I noticed that you are running in place.

Gary Coleman: Not really running (Interview, Aug 8, 2003).

BS: Well anyway, how are you? What have you been up to lately?

Gary Coleman: I question everything. I question authority... I question government... I question people who say they are experts (Interview, Aug 8, 2004).

BS: All right. Right now I'm looking at a short page my research assistants made up, and is it true that you once saved a bus full of children from mountain lions?

Gary Coleman: Oh absolutely (Interview, Jan 27, 2005).

BS: I'm impressed. This also says that you train with Splinter, the martial arts master who trained a group of adolescent malformed tortoises.

Gary Coleman: Yeah, that's my number one hobby. I've been doing that for damn near 25 years now (Interview, Jan 27, 2005).

BS: Hmm, interesting. Is there anything else you have been doing in your free time?

Gary Coleman: Trying to fly to the moon without a space suit! (Interview, Sep. 10, 1998).

BS: Wow, that seems pretty impossible. I don't see anyway feasible you could really accomplish that safely.

Gary Coleman: Part of my chromosomal make-up. I can't even tell you why (Interview, Jan. 27, 2005).

BS: What is your experience as far as school security goes?

Gary Coleman: Only once ... It wasn't the best job I could have done (Interview, Sep. 10, 1998).

BS: Has anyone ever gotten hurt while you were on the job?

Gary Coleman: Hey, as long as they want to pay big bucks (Interview, Sep. 10, 1998).

BS: I believe that we are out of time. Thank you for sitting down with me. Is there anything you would like to say to the student body as we leave?

Gary Coleman: Stay home (Interview, Sep. 10, 1998).

Citing Lack of Presidential Achievement, Bush Unifies the Dakotas

ABOVE: The new map of the United States with the newly unified Dakotas. RIGHT: Bush explains how the unification of the Dakotas will help the war on terror. AP PHOTO

By Winston Llental

Recently, immediately after realizing that he was indeed President, George W. Bush also realized that his time in office was running out. Looking back on his tenure at President, he didn't see anything that would mark his legacy for years to come. In order to do so, and have a little fun on the way, Bush announced at a recent press conference that he would be unifying North Dakota and South Dakota into one state known as The Dakota.

"The Dakota will bring North Dakotans and South Dakotans together as one, ending a feud that has lasted for more than a century," says Bush.

Whether or not that feud had existed prior Bush's announcement, it has lead to an eruption of state pride that has turned into a hatred not seen in America since the likes of the Civil War. North Dakotans are now accusing South Dakotans of slave running while South Dakotans are accusing North Dakotans of making illegal trade agreements with Canada.

A question also remains as to how the current Republican governors of North and South Dakota, John Hoeven and Michael Rounds, respectively, will share power. Although Bush has already named both of them as Co-Governors of The Dakota, a publicity blitz has begun to oust either governor on both sides of the Dakota state lines. The Anti-Michael Rounds of the former North Dakota is touting a campaign that uses "Michael Rounds is a Square," while the Anti-John Hoeven campaign of South Dakota is using the campaign of "Hoeven Ain't Got Love for The Dakota."

If the Dakota dream does come true as Bush hopes, he is sure that it will spark tourism to the least exciting state in America. "I honestly don't know what is down there," Bush chuckled. "Heck, one state, two states, red state, blue state!"

Bush said he would go to any lengths necessary to unify the Dakotas, even if it means an invasion by the US army to the North/South Dakota state line. Democrats were outraged by this claim, but since they offered no viable solution as they often do, they said they wouldn't stop The Dakota from becoming a reality.

DHS Spanish Teacher to Co-Star in Upcoming Antonio Banderas Movie

By Angel Gilmore

It was announced earlier this week that Profesora Lupe Vicario has been hired to act alongside world-renowned actor Antonio Banderas in his upcoming new film.

“I’m just so excited, I’m not sure what to think!” exclaimed a wild-eyed Vicario. She auditioned for the part months ago, but there was a slight delay because no one could pronounce her name correctly. Once the producers got it down, they were able to call her to tell her the good news.

The movie, Los perros que llevan sombreros tontos, is about the hardships and struggles growing up as a wealthy middle-upper class Hispanic boy on the North Shore and the lack of discrimination he faced. Banderas takes up the part later on in the boy’s journey, and Vicario is to play both his mother and wife.

“I think it’s trying to say that inside, we all have just a little bit of an Oedipus complex,” Vicario said, shrugging. “I’m not exactly sure. I think it’s just as weird as you do.”

“I am...very happy to be working alongside such a marvelous actress as Lupe,” commented Banderas. “They usually just sit me down alongside some actress who knows nothing about anything. But with Lupe, a local, and a beauty, nothing can go wrong.” At this point our Flipside interviewer’s hand cramped up from alternately writing furiously and fanning herself so that the rest of her notes are blurry. But you get the point.

Filming is to begin later in the month. The shooting schedule has been worked around Vicario’s schedule so she will miss as little school as possible, meaning most shots take place in the school itself or, for shots on location, they must take place over a week-end.

“First we’re heading to Rome for a weekend,” said Vicario, checking her schedule. “Then we shoot in the courtyard. After that I’m hopping a plane to South Africa, but that Monday we’ll be shooting in the center X-hall staircase. It’s such a lovely view; no one will notice that it isn’t an exotic location.”

Many details of the film still need to be worked out, mainly the transportation of Profesora Vicario’s cart. It has been cleared on all major airlines, but it’s tricky getting it up those X-hall stairs.

One of the dogs used in Los perros que llevan sombreros tontos. AP PHOTO

ADVERTISEMENTS - ADVERTISEMENTS - ADVERTISEMENTS - ADVERTISEMENTS - ADVERTISEMENTS - ADVERTISEMENTS - ADVERTISEMENTS -

Smart - Tees

Mona Ziegler
Betsey Wells

1-847-317-0016
837 Waukegan Rd.
Deerfield, IL 60015

Custom Printing
Embroidery
Junk Food
Tie Dye
Fashion Tees... and Much More!

Grandma Ruth Approves!

Eggsperience Pancakes & Cafe

OPEN DAILY - 6 AM to 4 PM

Located in Bannockburn Green Shopping Center

T: (847) 940 8444 F: (847) 940 8445

2545 Waukegan Rd - Bannockburn IL 60015

COME SEE THE JV BOYS VOLLEYBALL TEAM!

JV TEAM SCHEDULE: GO WARRIORS!

4/18 @ Vernon Hills 5:00
4/19 @ Niles North 5:00
4/25 @ Highland Park 5:00
4/27 vs. Maine West 5:00
5/2 vs. Maine East 5:00
5/4 @ Glenbrook North 5:00
5/9 vs. Niles North 5:00
5/11 vs. Highland Park 5:00
5/15 @ Maine West 5:00
5/17 @ Maine East 5:00
5/18 vs. Warren 5:00

THE JV BOYS VOLLEYBALL TEAM DIGS THE FLIPSIDE

Joy Us Jaunts

Art Tours and Much More!

The Flipside Travels the World With Joy Us Jaunts!

joy horwich gallery
3180 n. lake shore drive
chicago, il 60657
joyusjaunts@aol.com

COMICS: KING ME

By Mosquito Blandito

My Queen, the people have no bread.

Then let them eat fortune cookies!

Three hours later

Hooray!

My fortune says that my wife is cheating on me.

...in bed!

Fan Hurts Kellen Winslow’s Feelings; Winslow Out For Season

By Dudley Tenfold

Former University of Miami Hurricane star tight end Kellen Winslow made his entry into the NFL with a bang. And by bang, we mean he broke his leg in many, many places sidelining him for the year, both physically and emotionally. The following year promised to be promising for the promising pigskin player. However, while Winslow was out promoting his “Miami Bad-Boy” image on his motorcycle, his season ended abruptly again. It is not that he was riding around on the highway and some crazy fan bombarded his bike with footballs, but he fell on his bike in the Cleveland Browns facility parking lot. A parking lot. Not off fighting African tigers, like a Miami Bad-Boy would do; in a parking lot.

At Winslow’s most recent press conference, an angry Browns’ fan expressed his anger. You may be wondering what a fan was doing at a press conference, but this is a satirical article, and that’s just the way things go. The fan snappily snapped at Winslow. “Hey Winslow. You’re about as weak as a piece of balsa wood. That is as weak as wood gets. You gonna be able to stay on your feet for the whole season or are you gonna hurt yourself in a horrible shuffleboard accident?”

Winslow responded by cradling himself into a ball and crying in a corner. He was quoted no more than 15 minutes after the incident. “It’s just plain mean. I mean, that guy’s just a bully. I hate bullies. I also hate tuna fish, but I hate bullies more. My emotional state has been suspended into oblivion.”

Team doctors concluded a week later that Winslow was far too injured to play in the 2006 season. Flipside reporters asked the doctor, Dr. Jabberwatt, if he knew that Winslow had been in the NFL for 3 seasons and was yet to play two games. Dr. Jabberwatt responded “I did not have sexual relations with that woman.”

Winslow, about to break into tears. AP PHOTO

Local Phobiaphobic in Constant State of Fear

By Camper Tiffley

DEERFIELD, IL-Just last Tuesday, a local Deerfield man was diagnosed with phobiaphobia. The man, named Fred Phabic, is a carpenter and self-proclaimed Mr. Fix It, but he has one slight quirk.

The Flipside interviewed his doctor, and found very surprising results. When Mr. Phabic came in for his check-up, his doctor told him about all the new phobias around the world such as and not limited to allodoxapho-bia, the fear of opinions, iatrophobia, the fear of and going to the doctor, agateophobia, the fear of becoming insane, and many more.

At this new knowledge Mr. Phabic “became quite fearful,” in the words of his doctor. “He was a phobia-phobic...The first of his kind. It was kind of exciting. I didn’t know what to do with him so I gave him Tylenol.”

Currently, Mr. Fred Phabic is at an insane asylum with iatrophobic and phobiaphobia and still very much in fear.

I’ve Never Been This Excited For Halloween

By Shrek Johnson

Yeah, I know I changed my name to make it more American but give me a break. Plus, it’s only six months until Halloween and that means only one thing....

It means that I get to go around and Trick-or-Treat. I can tell you for sure with unparalleled certainty that I am the best Trick-or-Treater in this world or in the Fairy Tale world.

When I go up to a house they compliment my costume that I’m not wearing and I just giggle and take all their candy.

Is there possibly a better holiday? There isn’t; that was a rhetorical question. There really isn’t a better holiday when you are an ogre because when you are an ogre there really are no other holidays.

But the reason this Halloween is so much more exciting than the other Halloweens is because this year we all get to carry around light sabers.

Just kidding. Everyone knows that light sabers aren’t real. What we are actually going to do that is going to make this Halloween unbelievable is carve out a pumpkin. Can you believe that? I might carve it out to look like me, or the president, or a bunny rabbit, or a train, or a clown, or something else. There are just so many options!

Maybe this year I will even wear a hat and get dressed up. Nah. I’ll just go classic and wear short shorts and a mask and a vest.

Barry Bonds Tests Positive for Spinach

By Vernon Zexis

SAN FRANCISCO—After numerous steroid allegations that have been placed upon San Francisco Giants’ left fielder Barry Bonds since the 2001 season, Major League Baseball today realized they had him all wrong. George Mitchell, head of baseball’s new steroid investigation, held a startling press conference today to announce that Barry Bonds had been taking a substance long-known to increase strength and body mass.

“I am pleased to announce today that the investigation has been a smashing success,” said Mitchell. “While we cannot prove that Barry Bonds has taken steroids, we’ve been able to prove that he has eaten spinach, also a performance-enhancing substance.”

These allegations stunned a bewildered Barry Bonds, who is now in fear of suspension.

Bonds, contrary to popular belief, will not be the first baseball player indicted on charges of spinach. Popeye McGuire, who played in the 1950s on the Reds, was a little known slugger who ate spinach like it was his job. He hit seven home runs a game for the first fifteen games until they figured him out and erased all of his numbers from the record books.

Barry Bonds and Popeye McGuire, the two known people to test positive for spinach. AP PHOTO

The public wonders now...does that same fate await Barry Bonds?

“I never knowingly ate spinach,” said Barry Bonds during a recent batting practice interview. “And even if I did eat spinach, I could name for you at least fifty other sluggers who have. So there.”

Whether or not Barry Bonds’ records will be thrown out remains in question.

“This is only the second time baseball has dealt with a legitimate spinach allegation,” said Bud Selig, commissioner of Major League Baseball.

“There are too many determining factors that come along with spinach, whether the spinach was creamed or in full leaf form, etc., etc. We’d have to look at the eating habits of nearly all of baseball’s past heroes, including Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, and the great Honus Wagner in order to give Barry Bonds’s records true weight.”

An aging Popeye McGuire offered his opinion on the recent spinach scandal to make sure the nation’s youth doesn’t get the wrong message. “Back in my day, I thought I could eat spinach till the cows came home and there would be no problems about that,” said Popeye.

“Now that I’m a decrepit old man, I see the mistakes of my past. Spinach is only temporary, eating right and exercising are the only way to make not only your body but also your mind stronger as well.”

Only time will tell whether these spinach allegations tarnish the career of Bonds, but for now, they linger as just slightly more than hearsay.

Are you baffled by a homework problem? Do you have some life-threatening situation that you need advice on? If either of those questions applies to you, or even if they don't, you are in the right place. Jeeves has all the answers, and it's up to you whether or not to take the advice.

has the amount of tape measured in moles per cubic liter but I don't know stoichiometry. So here's my problem: What day is today?

From,

Doesn't Know the Date

Dear Jeeves,

I just lost one hundred trillion dollars and I'm unemployed and I have been eating string cheese for the last five years. And that is only the beginning of my problems. What do I do?

From,

Bankrupt in Boston

Dear Bankrupt,

Clearly the solution is obvious. You must find the one hundred trillion dollars that you lost, start a hedge fund, and hire someone to cook your food. www.ask.com

Dear Jeeves,

I used to be very powerful and run a country but I have made all these stupid decisions and now most people dislike me. What is there for me to do?

Sincerely,

Powerless in Paris

Dear Powerless,

You will find related answers by searching

President George Bush, Saddam Hussein, and President Richard Nixon. Also search people who no one like. Those will all give you answers to your question. www.ask.com

Dear Jeeves,

I just was given a Rubik's cube. I mixed it up and have spent the last two weeks tirelessly trying to solve it. Is it possible? I don't think it is. Any suggestions?

From,

Confused in Lake County

Dear Confused,

Besides the obvious solution of taking off all of the stickers and replacing them correctly, there is the possibility of visiting my website and searching Rubik's cube solution and finding that it actually is impossible if you don't know what you are doing. However if you do know what you are doing you can find further readings on www.ask.com.

Dear Jeeves,

I really like your haircut. Who do you go to. Can you tell me their phone number?

Yours Truly,

Uri

Dear Uri,

For a listing of places to get a haircut you can go to google and search places to get a haircut because, let's be honest, anything you search on askjeeves.com or ask.com will just give you very bad results and probably give you a virus.

Dear Jeeves,

I am going for the world record of making the largest structure out of strictly masking tape. The current world record

Dear Stupid,

I am not going to make any judgement calls about your lack of intelligence, so I will suggest to you that get a calendar, a hockey stick, and a calculator and all of your problems. will be solved.

www.ask.com

Dear Jeeves,

I am in gym class right now and I only have sandals but I need gym shoes? What do I do? What do I tell my teacher?

Sincerely,

Stuck Without Shoes

Dear Stuck,

I will now proceed to answer this question like a politician and not answer your question. Because, America, the real issue is your money and how you are being taxed unfairly. And if you want to solve that problem, you will elect me, Jeeves (D-Wis), to be President in 2008.

Jeeves is on vacation from www.ask.com to go see the sights of the world. Not the sites, the sights. Actually, some sites, but mostly sights.

Water Found on Saturn Leads to Restaurant Constructions by 2009

By Troy Newmanns

SATURN—Recent discoveries through NASA’s many telescopes have led to the discovery of water on one of Saturn’s moons, Enceladus. The water has rushed through the moon’s surface, leading to many questions about whether life could sustain there. For the past decade, research has been conducted to discover whether Mars, the fourth planet from the sun, could support human life. However, with these new discoveries, the focus has changed.

“It’s very exciting. It could mean

the expansion of the human race throughout the galaxy and could lead to intergalactic traveling,” said Dr. Noheet Ahll, during a recent NASA press conference. “There are millions to be made with these discoveries and scientists all around the world are trying to make discoveries as quickly as possible. It’s like a new space race.”

Of course, with the potential of humans living on Saturn, the commercial possibilities are endless. A McDonalds representative said, “Just like there is a McDonalds in every country, there will be a McDonalds on every one of Saturn’s moons.” Other restaurant chains such as Chili’s, Buger King, Jack in the Box, and Baskin Robbins have released their plans for future restaurant locations on Enceladus in 2009.

“Everyone wants to get up there. Where there are people, there’s money to be made,” said one CEO who wished to remain nameless for competition purposes.

Local bar owners have also expressed interest in moving to Enceladus to seek out the fortune that is to be made. “They say that moons are made of cheese, but I just want to make money,” said local bar owner Michael Haberdeg. “I could see this happening. I think I’ll start right now in making some first tests. I’ll be ready for 2009. Yes, I will be ready.”

The new look for Saturn? AP PHOTO

What's Your Lunch Checkout Line?

You enter the post office and you smell a smell that you haven’t smelled since:

- A. The last time you entered the post office
- B. The ball pit at Chuck E Cheeses
- C. You eliminated glue from your diet
- D. The last time the president did something productive

You would most likely find yourself selling what on eBay?

- A. Your pride
- B. Class of 1999 II: The Substitute DVD
- C. A nifty lasso
- D. The gosh-darn Constitution!

You find a magic lamp behind you friend’s lifetime supply of Cheeto Puffs. You would greet the genie:

- A. Boisterously
- B. Stealthily
- C. With the headbutt of a Welshman
- D. By exchanging yams

A young man sporting an Enron insignia on his shirt asks you for kerosene. You respond:

- A. “Insignia?”
- B. “For some reason, this really makes me want to yodel.”
- C. “Kerosene? That be some type o’jigsaw?”
- D. “If you payeth a quent of your purse, I’d be happy to spare a liter.”

Upon your step-uncle’s request for a quail impersonation, you instinctively:

- A. Cross your legs and say there’s nothing wrong with it
- B. Gulp down a Fresca
- C. Say, “Quail me this or quail me that!”
- D. Brush up your overalls and harmonize with your dead siblings

The guy from the Allstate commercials gives your English class a lecture on the birds and the bees. The first question you would ask is:

- A. “How many furlongs to the nearest mini-mart?”
- B. “Where’s the Subway guy?”
- C. “What’s your favorite stereotype?”
- D. “A bird you say? An oriole, per chance?”

You are asked to perform a lobotomy in the Student Union. You reluctantly:

- A. Accept, knowing that it’ll get you the ladies
- B. Decline, you’re not a neurosurgeon
- C. Suck broccoli out of Henry Winkler’s cavity-filled mouth
- D. Do a tap dance for the kiddies

Three Polish men approach your wise-cracking butler and demand:

- A. A game of Heads Up 7 Up pronto!
- B. A charity all-star game for kids who chew with their mouths open
- C. Lessons in love
- D. A bungalow made of Fig Newtons and a charismatic “little person”

Your Tae-Kwon-Do skills have been questioned, you:

- A. See “Wicked” again
- B. Crowd around the village idiot and let out a deep grunt of bewilderment
- C. Betray your Rastafarian roots and join a right-wing militia group based in Lubbock, Texas
- D. Notice the changes in your body as you enter adolescence

“When you dance, your purpose is not to get to a certain place on the floor. It’s to enjoy each step along the way.” You interpret this quote as:

- A. Dickensian nonsense, I say!
- B. Freudian genius, I say!
- C. The next Applebee’s motto, I say!
- D. I say, I say!

Mostly A’s... Your line is all the way right. How could you pass up cash only?

Mostly B’s... You belong at the second line from right. You might not buy lunch every day, but at least this way you know you’ll be first to the condiments.

Mostly C’s... You were made to go to the line second from the left. You opt for the quick line and you enter the line with ID card in hand. No one knows that you budged to get in there.

Mostly D’s... You go all the way left. Don’t look at me like I’m making some political statement, that’s just what it is.

Horoscopes

Aries (March 21-April 19): Today is 6. Sometimes, problems just need a little elbow grease. And sometimes $200 and a new pair of pants.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Today is a 10. Happy Birthday. There is a very small chance that you will get what you actually want because the mind reader you hired to tell everyone what you want is on vacation. Again, Happy Birthday.

Gemini (May 21-June 21): Today is a 6. You will finally develop that long sought after poker face this weekend. Unfortunately, all others will lose the will to play with you after viewing it.

Cancer (June 22-July 22): Today is a 2. As a magician, it is important for you to update your act from time to time. But remember, as a human being, you can only spontaneously combust so many times.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Today is a 7. Be wary of appendage-less cold-blooded creatures on all modes of transportation.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Today is a 7. Making an underground fortress for yourself does not make you a superhero. Even if you didn’t use any sofa cushions this time.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Today is a 3. In order to maximize your efficiency in all work, you will decide to eat sugar for breakfast, lunch and dinner and to drink Diet Coke to get your daily dose of battery acid.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Today is a 5. The Facebook server crashing brings your world to a stand still. You will write all about this travesty on your MySpace.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Today is a 9. If you were wondering why you forgot your locker combination, it is because your friends decided lockers were so last year. Also they have been talking about you behind your back. They’ve said some pretty funny stuff.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Today is a 1. You seem to have lost all of your skill for sharpening pencils. Go back to the minors and get a real job.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Today is a 10. The only reason it is a ten is because the person who is writing this has their birthday in this time and wants to have a good day. If you want a real reading, look at Libra.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Today is an 8. It is hard to believe that the flashlight you have been looking for for the past fifteen years is right behind you. Don’t let this cause you to lose hope on school, because if all else fails, you can still get an athletic scholarship.

Obituaries

Just recently, a Wilson volleyball died. The murderer, Jeremy Kogan, killed the ball so violently that when it made contact with the ground, it popped and exploded into a million little pieces (based off a true story).

The dinosaurs went extinct finally after Sue, the last T-Rex, fell apart in that museum yesterday.

Last week in a competitive game of dice, Gorgon Gorgonson’s die died. The infamous pair of die had rolled their last roll and had finally met their match...his dog.

Corrections

In the quiz on page 7 it said, "Do nothign" when it should have said "Do nothing."

Under the headline it said, "Free everywhere" when it should have said, "Free everywhere."

In the article "NASA Sends a Man to Walmart" it said, "Last Tuesday saw the laugh of the shuttle rediscovery" when it should have said, "Last Tuesday saw the launch of the shuttle rediscovery."

In "Ask the Raven" a question said, "I can figure it out" when it should have said, "I can't figure it out."

In the Obituaries it said, "Ed Thome sense of humor died" when it should have said "Ed Thome's sense of humor died."

In the article “Local Kid Just Wants to go to the NBA” Stafman’s stats during the Antioch game were reported as 3 points, 2 assists, 2 rebounds, and 2 turnovers when it was actually 4 points, 2 assists, 2 rebounds, and 2 turnovers.

Typo Challenge Winners and Finders:
Pat Glass
Jenine Andrew
Niki Graham

WHY DID THE
CHICKEN WRITE
FOR THE FLIPSIDE?

EMAIL:

theman@
dhsflipside.com

“Who makes this newspaper anyway?”

A FEW LOST SOULS WALKING DOWN THE COURTYARD. THE STAFF IS LISTED RIGHT BELOW, FOOLS!

PICTURE THIS

SUDOKU

Level: Obnoxious

	3	9			5
			4	6	7	8
	7						1
3							7
	6	5				9	8
	1							3
	9						4
		6	3	2	1
			5			6	2

Directions: Complete the grid so that each row, column, and 3x3 box in bold has every digit 1-9, with no repeats.

LAST EDITION'S SOLUTION

1	8	5	3	7	9	2	4	6
6	2	3	4	8	1	7	5	9
7	4	9	6	5	2	3	8	1
3	7	8	5	4	6	9	1	2
4	1	2	9	3	7	8	6	5
5	9	6	2	1	8	4	7	3
8	6	7	1	2	3	5	9	4
9	3	4	7	6	5	1	2	8
2	5	1	8	9	4	6	3	7

NUMBERS

7,246

The number of penguins who will mistakenly find themselves caught up in a conspiracy plot to overthrow the Vatican. Wait, make that comma a decimal and move it one space to the left.

JUMBLE

by RONNUS DAY

DIRECTIONS: Unscramble these four ordinary jumbles, and use the letters in the circles to answer the final question.

NEVAR
VIALE
FOLYST
TODIRA

A: HE WAS “ ”

3rd Issue: STING JOUST STRAND PRISON what type of campaign the dandelions ran GRASSROOTS

Our mission here at The Flipside is to provide you, the reader, with a few laughs and a great jumble and crossword puzzle. The articles are satirical and are not meant to offend anyone. Thank you.

STAFF jeremy keeshin, david zwick, ben elkind, jeremy kogan, allie bernstein, matt kaufman, aaron frazin, ari salinger, josh berry, greg katz, sam klein, jordan stein, ethan kaplan, ed thome

CROSSWORD

by GEOFFREY QUENT, Jr.

ACROSS

- Poker buy-in
- "Shut up!"
- Easy win
- Horse control
- Organic nitrogen compound
- Carbamide
- Superiority
- Brown or Polar
- Got food
- 16 per pound
- String member
- Fee, fie, foe, _
- Just take _
- Weapon maker
- Most nervous
- Hawaiian party
- Also
- Track down
- Mad
- Ends of 23 and 10- Down, perhaps
- One absorbed in meditation
- Yankees Thurman
- Japanese currency
- Has _
- Darkened
- Antelope
- Middle eye
- Roses are this color
- Stars that change in brightness
- Queen's hat?
- Petroleum
- Composed of wings
- Preponderate
- Trig. ratio
- Vinegar bottle
- Put away
- Cultivated
- Tried
- Small lake

DOWN

- Region
- After

1	2	3	4		5	6	7	8	9		10	11	12	13
14					15						16
17					18						19
20					21						22
				23				24		25
26	27	28					29		30				31	32	33
34					35			36		37
38					39		40		41		42
43					44		45		46		47
48							49		50		51
				52				53		54
55	56	57					58		59				60	61	62
63							64				65
66							67				68
69							70				71

- Vikings Coach Mike
- Opposite of WSW
- Native American peace pipe
- Word of Praise
- Mozambique city
- Take in
- Golf device
- 3-D Mind Puzzle?
- Nabisco cookie
- Breakfast, e.g.
- For, in Madrid
- Below, var.
- Snake poison
- 16, or a children's game?
- Unagi
- Fort besieged in Texas Revolution
- Get larger
- Carta
- Against Wade?
- Canvas supporter
- Iron and Carbon alloy
- Lead alloy
- Nonmetal prefix
- Look what _ done
- To throw, in kick-ball
- Maiden word
- Tell
- Thorn apple
- Passion
- Position, like an organ
- Phoenix Suns
- Steve
- Stew
- Wind indicator
- Urge
- Aware of
- Image
- Indecent
- Eight prefix
- Small snake

LAST EDITION'S SOLUTION

O	N	E	S		R	E	F	E	R		K	A	T	E
N	O	M	E		A	G	A	M	A		I	R	O	N
A	B	C	D	E	F	G	H	I	J	K	L	M	N	O
I	L	E	U	M		N	E	T		L	O	S	E	S
R	E	E	M	P	L	O	Y		D	A	M
					T	U	G		W	I	N	E	B	A
S	E	L	S	Y	N		O	H	M		T	A	T	E
A	L	O	E		E	N	D	O	W		E	B	O	N
S	M	U	G		T	E	E		I	R	R	U	P	T
H	Y	D	R	A	T	E		A	T	E
					E	R	E		I	N	S	A	N	E
S	O	G	G	Y		D	N	A		C	A	R	L	A
T	H	E	A	L	P	H	A	B	E	T	S	O	U	P
A	I	N	T		H	O	N	E	S		A	S	E	A
R	O	T	E		D	W	E	L	T		L	E	S	S