Pubescent 13 Year Olds Now Partying Later Than High Schoolers With New Curfew

Deerfield, IL- The much-maligned new curfew has had some unintended side effects. The once dreaded age of puberty, filled with voice cracks and hair growing in weird places, has now become the envy of high schoolers across the Jewish parts of the United States. As Juniors scrambled to make it home from a party before 11, those thirteen year olds were still dancing until one at some seventh grader's Bar Mitzvah.

Out of jealousy or genius, there has been a startling trend of high schoolers befriending thirteen year olds/crashing their parties. They may say it is for the montages or the sweet give-aways, but according to recently pubescent Abraham Mosesberg, "I think those big kids with deep voices are just here so they can stay up past their bedtimes."

A voice cracked filled mosh pit echoed similar sentiments, saying they were tired of high schoolers ruining the hugging game and slow dances. The nerdy kid with glasses explains, "Slow dances are the only time I can dance with a pretty girl, but with so many uninvited guests crowding the dance floor, I can barely trap Becky at an awkward time where she has no choice but to say yes." One thing no one can explain, however, is the sudden dramatic increase in Bar-Mitzvah's food and drink bill.

I Can't Believe I Have to Poop in School

There are just so many crappy options. All the bathrooms both literally and metaphorically stink. I would like to go to the bathroom in D Hall, but it is absolutely gross in there. Wonder what that is? I heard R hall is nice and tranquil. But it might be too quiet for my likings; the only sound would be the sounds of nature! And a slight plop when my doody hits the water. This is one of the most important choices in my high school career.

There is nice double-sided toilet paper in M-hall, which is a nice little surprise. D-hall has many stalls with various amounts of random filth left over and I could always chat with my next-door neighbors. If

Pregnant Woman Mysteriously Abandons Students

Chicago IL- A startling trend has spread across Deerfield High School. Many women, all teachers, had grown increasingly large bellies as the year progressed, culminating in their sudden disappearance. This mysterious transformation and vanishing act has left many high school students saddened, scared, and confused. According to now depressed math student Jessica Wolf, "One day Mrs. Tall was there with her funny looking belly, the next day she was gone."

Jenny Tall, a math teacher is not the only teacher to abandon her students this year.

For some odd reason, her husband, Joe Tall, also vanished despite the fact his belly has not been growing. Women in many departments were doing some unknown activity that made their bellies and belly-buttons balloon in comical styles and we at The Flipside were determined to find out.

Upon further investigation, our resident scientist has discovered the disturbing trend that these women were not getting fat, but were actually making babies appear. However, a couple of females with increasingly large bellies notified the Flipside that they were not pregnant and proceeded to slap our resident scientist square in the face. This left one Sam Clock almost as hurt as when his math teacher suddenly abandoned him, which hurt him a real lot.

my trip is lengthy, then it might be nice to have supports from my fellow crapieteers. With great dung, comes great responsibility.

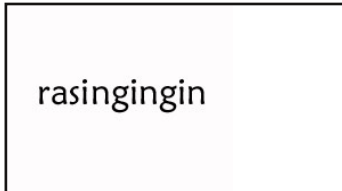

I've heard good things about X-hall regulars. The toilets are high up, so the water doesn't touch my tush when I sit down. Still, sometimes I need something to hold onto for support, which is why F-hall is a good option. Uh oh. This article can't wait any longer. I need to find a bathroom. The courtyard! That's it! How could I not have thought of this before! I have to go.
