Post-Prom Sponsors in School Senior Ditch Day

Deerfield II- Due to the amazing turn out to post-prom, the administration has come up with another counter-culture success. Their ads consisting of an arrow pointing at an empty desk with the statement "That could be you" has been met with tremendous success. Senior Melanie Shaw, who was not planning to attend school on senior ditch day, is just plain stoked to go to in school senior ditch day. "What really did it for me was the ad with kids running around the track in their gym clothes and the arrow saying this could be you. This is going to be so much more fun than not going to school. And safer to boot."

Some seniors are skeptical of an in school senior ditch day. Complaints have varied from school sucks all the way to school sucks. Conspiracy theorists assert this is some grand scheme by the administration to get students to show up on Senior Ditch Day, but the deans flat out deny these claims. "Just like post-prom, this event actually is not brought down by the natural boringness of school. How can it not be fun if the other grades cannot participate in it? You know you want to feel special. Don't give me that look."

The post-prom committee is really going the extra mile to replicate senior ditch day in a safer environment, as students still have to get called out by their parents. Real rebels can go to in school Senior Ditch Day without even being called out!

Seniors Dissappear, A Few Oddly Remain

Deerfield II- The oldest kids in school collectively decided not to show up, but this time it was even longer than Senior Get Called Out of All Your Classes Day. The effects of their disappearance have almost entirely been positive. Besides leaving Freshman befuddled without their leadership and gym class in more disarray than normal, there has been no other complaints from students and faculty alike.

Many students who shared classes with these lazy and usually annoying 18 year olds are "ecstatic that they are gone" and "excited to actually start getting work done." Many wonder why the seniors did not decide to leave earlier. It was quite apparent they did not want to be at school and school did not want them to be there.

Oddly, there are some seniors who lag behind, preparing for some final thing. These students tend to be the laziest, most obnoxious, and most vocally angry. However, no one understands why these stragglers remain, especially consider how easy it is to get a B- at Deerfield High School. Alas, we should be thankful of all the comic material seniors have given us throughout this year.

I Am Just Doing it For My Résumé

I am just doing it for my résumé,
I need to get into college and this is the only way.
I'll take any class that inflates my GPA,
Saving kids in Africa, I can't wait to put that in an essay.

It does not matter that I do not really know what the club is, All that matters is that someone looking at my résumé will say "Gee-whiz."
I could care less about how I do on any quiz,
Because with all those things

Saving the kids in Africa, I can't wait to put that in an essay on my résumé I'm definitely in biz.

Now my college interview comes,
I'm going to make all those ten extra-curricular kids look like bums.
The man says it's impressive I play the drums,
I say that that is not all I do, chums.

Then he responds and asks me to explain what I do,
I quickly start to turn blue.
Is he picking on me because I am a Jew?
He adds, "You do so much, it's almost too good to be true."

As I stutter to give him a valid explanation,
I get this sudden sensation.
My state of elation was replaced by frustration,
My entire résumé was just one big decoration.

Lower your expectations to increase success. It works every time. Try telling it to your parents.

REBUS PUZZLE:

Can you guess the common word or phrase portrayed below?

Last week's answers: EXCELLENCY, SUMMARY, FRANK SINATRA, QUEEN FOR A DAY

NUMBERS:4.2, 2.6

The average score for Deerfield Students on their AP exams, followed by the national average. Of course, the latter number is according to the all-knowing Wikipedia, the first place one should go to start a research project. No matter which way you slice it, the Deerfield school body is one smart cookie.

FACT:

The pizza you buy is the sole supporter of the Flipside. So for all who have purchased a delicious two dollar slice of pizza (quite a bargain, if I do say so myself) you have help make this double sided sheet of paper what it has become.
