

Everyday Heroes: The Men of Feminist Club

New this year, the Deerfield High School Feminist Club has, for some reason, sparked controversy. The girls involved in it say that it's about women's issues, while others think that it is just a place for whiny girls to commiserate about the wage gap. But as with any struggle, heroes here have arisen. From the quarrel, the holy few have ascended: the men of the Feminist Club.

But who are these heroes among us? One is junior Blake Bendon. "I dunno, it just seemed pretty cool," Bendon said of the club, "I mean, there's snacks and, like, I think girls should have the same stuff guys should have, so... why not? You know?" Amazing. Can you imagine the world if there were more open-minded people like Blake in it?

But Blake is one of a small but diverse group of heroes, drawn to the club for a variety of reasons like it's some kind of good-guy Mecca. We asked some of these superstars what drew them in, and the responses were inspirational. Senior Cameron Lenig stated "it'll probably look good on my college app", and sophomore Eric Davis said it "seemed like there's a lot of hot girls there and not a ton of competition". Club sponsor Mr. Huff declined to comment for this article.

We asked one of the girls in charge of the club what she thought of the men of the club. She said that "[...] the guys are great [...]", and she's right! The fact that these men are brave enough to step up and say that they are down with equal rights for men and women really proves to the opposition that this club is legitimate. So thanks, men of Feminist Club! You inspire us, amaze us, and show us the great things men are capable of!

The Flipside Answers Your College Questions

Having solved all your computer issues, and with the 1 November deadline quickly approaching for early college applications, we here at the Flipside decided to answer your questions about tackling the application process.

Question: What's the difference between Early Decision and Early Action?

Answer: ED involves selling your soul, while EA is for more experienced applicants and requires a virgin sacrifice. If you're looking for a suitable victim, we hear there are a lot in the computer science classes.

Question: When should I start my college applications?

Answer: Deerfield college counselors recommend taking advantage of your free time during the summer to begin essays and applications. We, at the Flipside, encourage you to follow in our footsteps: do everything the night before it is due. When do you think we wrote this article?

Question: Why is there a Universal App if schools don't universally accept it?

Answer: It's actually conspiracy by the Common App to convince you that they are so popular they created competition. Common App PR
