

Confused Freshman Discovers Z-Hall

Lost and hopelessly confused, freshman Danny Booker found himself wandering around a section of the school that was never meant for student use this Monday.

"I still don't know how it happened," reported Danny, still rattled from the experience. "I made a right, then made a left, then made a right, then made a left, and all of a sudden I was somewhere I knew didn't look right. Me, being a freshman, didn't realize I was in the wrong place."

Built in the fifties, Z-hall was intended to be a bomb shelter, before the idea was scrapped due to the fact that it was a stupid idea. Z-hall was then sealed, and it and its treasure were thought to be lost for good-- until now, when Danny Booker unwittingly stumbled in, accidentally tripping over some gold bullions of the ground.

Trying to find his Social Studies class, Danny sat down in one of the classrooms. Instead of finding a teacher, instead he found the the room was completely burned down. However,

The entrance to Z Hall, which Booker mistook for a bathroom er, Danny didn't think anything was wrong, confessing, "I just thought it was Mr. Kim's room. Everyone's always talking about how hot he is." Booker finally realized he was in the wrong place when he went to the bathroom and encountered the ghost of Deerfield's past.

No matter how it was discovered, Z-hall is easily one of the top ten archaeological finds of our generation. Many history teachers claim that it may help us better understand the thought processes of Cold-War Deerfield. Many English teachers claim that it is somehow offensive. Rumor has it that the technology department was actually originally created to keep Z-hall, and its gifts to the world, all to themselves.

Booker, however, does not consider himself an archeological hero. Instead, he's just worried about finding his third period class.

- Joey Balke

Other Headlines

School spends thousands of dollars on new bleachers for students to not sit in (p3).

Freshman can't find gym, senior cant find willpower to show up to class (p.4).

Millions of chromebooks already destroyed (p.6).

We'll Be Better This Time, We Promise.

Deerfield, we're sorry. It will never happen again. We know, we messed up, but we're so sorry and we really hope you will take us back. Seeing you with that other newspaper just really messed us up. We made promises, and we didn't keep them. Remember when we said it would be an issue a week? Yeah, you were lucky if you got an issue a month. We recognize that. We let it get away from us. We know, you have needs. You need attention from us. You need your weekly dose of cutting-edge satirical "comedy" from us. You need your cringey

"jokes." But sometimes newspaper writers and editors have needs to. Things like sleep, free time, time to study. But we're making excuses again. We're sorry. We're back. But this time, with a purpose. You will never have to turn to that other newspaper again. They filled a necessary hole that we left, but now we're here again. And come on, face it, they could never satisfy you like we could. They were a lot like us, but which is the newspaper that could actually make you laugh? Well, that wasn't us, either, but you get the point. That newspaper is gone now, and it's time to start anew. And with this new start, we are looking for more people to build our numbers and make it a reality. Do you think your jokes are funny but are constantly greeted with crickets by your friends? You'll fit right in at The Flipside! Now that we're back and under new management, it's going to be a great year for attempted comedy. Email co editors-in-chief Andrew Devedjian (171devedjiana@student.dist113.org) or Joey Balke (171balkej@student.dist113.org) for details. It's low-commitment, low-effort, and all around just low-quality in every respect! Looking for anyone who can write, be "funny," proofread, draw, think, dab, dance a jig, or give false testimony. If you can do any of the above, hit us up!

We want you to write for the Flipside.

- Joey Balke

Corrections

We haven't had a previous issue to correct. You're fresh outta luck bud.

Pointless Interview with a Teacher: Eugene Chung

Born on Mars in year 2002, Mr. Chung quickly became one of the DHS' most beloved Quemistry teachers. In addition, he is a respected coach, coaching girls and boys volleyball, as well as figure skating, curling, and dressage. I sought out an interview with him as I was not only interested in his perspective, but also because he was lunch monitoring and I needed to interview someone.

Me: Mr. Chung, what is your favorite type of water?

Mr. Chung (without missing a beat): Kangan water. It's so cool, you can change it's pH and do all sorts of fun stuff with it.*

Me: What peice of furniture describes how you work in a group setting?

Mr. Chung: Hmm... Probably a television. All eyes on me

Me: What vegetable best describes your fellings about school starting again?

Mr. Chung (after a bit of thought): Celery. It's crisp, it's refreshing, it's exciting... but once you bite into it, you realize it's just celery.

Me: What Looney Tunes character best matches your aesthetic?

Mr. Chung: Aesthetic? Like appearance?

Me: No, more like general vibe.

Mr. Chung: Probably the martian. Intelligent. Dangerous. Exotic.

Me: If you were a drink, what would you be and what would you be served in?

Mr. Chung: Water, with a twist of lemon; in whatever you want bby ;)

Thank you Mr. Chung for being such a good sport. Interview questions and backstory may be embellished for comedic effect.

The first thing that comes up on google for "Eugene Chung":

*Mr. Chung contacted me later to change his answer to "the water they use to make my dunkin donuts coffe." Nice, way to make up your mind.

CRYPTOGRAM CHALLENGE

This is a simple substitution code. Each letter is replaced by a different letter. Try to decode the message or quote below. HINT: "W" becomes "X"

XV XBTT LA KVFFVD FPBQ FBOV, XV YDAOBQV!

SUDOKU

LEVEL: Ayy Imoa

Fill in the grid so each column, row, and 3x3 box has the numbers 1 through 9.

8
		3	6
	7			9		2
	5				7
				4	5	7
			1				3
		1					6	8
		8	5				1
	9					4

REBUS PUZZLES

Can you guess the common word or phrase portrayed below?

Puzzles By Andrew Devedjian

NOTE: All names and stories are fictional, unless public figures are being satirized. Remember, these are all jokes. We appologize for any material that be may offending; that is not our intention.

A special thanks to Joey Balke and Joey Balke for their contributions to this issue. This edition's editor was Joey Balke